	09:00-10:00	Bloodletting and Balms: A Journey Into	Master Avram syn	Step into the world of medieval healing, where humors ruled the body and remedies blended folklore, faith, and early science. This class explores the fascinating and often surprising practices of medicine in the Middle Ages, from barber-surgeons and apothecaries to wise women and monastic infirmaries. We'll examine the core beliefs behind medieval health — including the four humors theory — and demonstrate common treatments such as bloodletting, herbal remedies, poultices, and charms. Hands-on examples of period tools, ingredients, and texts will bring the world of medieval medicine to life. Whether you're interested in the daily life of a healer, curious about the line between medicine and magic, or want to add realism to your reenactment persona, this class offers both education and entertainment. Come ready to learn — and maybe to thank your lucky stars
